PROPOSED THAT THEY BOMBARD MADISONVILLE.

Union Man In Recent Central City Meeting Wanted Ten Shooters From Each Local.

MUCH GRUMBLING AT STRIKE ASSESSMENT.

All Guns Sent to Sturgis and Will Be Fired toward to Linton, Indiana.

OTHERSHOOTINGS THAT MISCARRIED

Central City, Ky., Sept. 20.—(Special).—Your correspondent attended a called meeting of United Mine Workers in Central City recently. About fifty men were present. This meeting was not called by the regular officials of the order, but by would-be-if-they-could-be officers, one of whom wanted ten nervy men from each local to storm and bombard Madisonville. He proposed to move with his army from Sturgis, where the guns of the order are now kept.

The regular officials of the order opposed such foolishness and it was voted down. One of the regular officials said the order had tried this sort of business once in Hopkins county and lost out, and that he would quit the order if any more shooting was done. Another official said if the nervy men wanted to go on their own hook they could do so, but that no U. M. W. money would be used to defend them.

There were two St. Charles men present, one of whom by name of John — claimed he had shot at a St. Bernard man recently, but missed him, but that he would take better aim next time.

The fifty-eight guns that were kept in a certain boarding house in Central City were recently sent to Sturgis.

There is much grumbling at the assessment of ten per cent, for the Pennsylvania strike fund. A Hillside miner claims that his board, assessments and dues, and bank expenses left him but fifteen cents for the two weeks work. A Central City miner replied that the "scabs" in Hopkins county were making far more money than the union miners in Central City. Whereupon Hillside stated that "the union has been a detriment to the miners for two years past. I'll tell Jim Wood or any of them that the union only benefits the officers and is only a d—d expense to the miner. Wood and their fellows run around and have a good time and us poor devils have to pay for it." The Central City miner replied, "That's me exactly and there are two-thirds of the miners right here in Central City that feel the same way, but the d—ools have not got the nerve to say so."

At the big picnic at Sturgis, Saturday, it was voted to send the seventy-five guns on hand to Linton, Ind. Some of the Sturgis men wanted to go to Hopkins county and bushwhack. A noted organizer, who has had trouble with the law, told them they could go to Hopkins but that they would run into a bad lot of men, who keep well posted on the doings of the U. M. W. A prominent official stated that Hopkins county could never be won peacefully. At Sturgis a negro was given a thrashing by white U. M. W.'s because he was noisy in a meeting.

I learned at Sturgis that the guns which had been taken at Madisonville have been taken to Sturgis. I have the names of the parties who packed them up and carried them away from Madisonville. Also know where they were kept in Madisonville.

I am told certain officials of sub-district No. 1, in July last, planned to put a lot of armed men into the cornfield close by the Reinoecke mines to shoot into the men as they came from work, a large number of U. M. W. to holding a meeting in the court house yard at the same time, the purpose being to prove an alibi if the shooters were found out. But there were not enough nervy men to volunteer.

I am in a position to keep The Bee advised of warlike movements by Wood and Barnaby, and will see that the paper is kept advised. A MINER.

stage. "Down in Hopkins" will be the title, but we venture to say that Wood will never play the part he took when leading the gang in Hopkins. If he would only show up in his true character as seen down here a one night's stand in a town would be too long and the demand for stale eggs would be far beyond the supply, but evidently the drama, if such it can be called, is founded on fiction and not on facts.

Superintendent Harris has become so accustomed to see U. M. W. buttons worn about Morton's for the past two years, until very recently, that it is now told on him that he has offered 50 cents to any one of the once famous gang of idlers who will muster up enough courage to wear one. They now number so few and are so thoroughly disgusted with their past conduct that they are now afraid to be recognized as one.

Foreman Toombs has put a new fan in at No. 11 ready for work and a new engine house at Victoria mine has been completed and both scales at the latter place overhauled and put in first class shape.

Foreman E. L. Stokes says his new palace stable down in the No. 11 mine has been completed and naturally he feels proud over the fact that he has had the honor of building for the St. Bernard Mining Company the first stable to be built under the ground by that company.

The construction force under the supervision of Foreman Toombs, we are told, will soon commence work on a new tip and trestle at No. 11 mine and will also put in a new shaker screen there. In fact, the building crews now at work for the St. Bernard Mining Company are rushed with work. An additional trestle will soon have to be built for the new coke ovens fast nearing completion, and it looks like the day of rest for our carpenters is not near by.

One of the U. M. W. sympathizers living at Morton's, who has been trying to ride two horses going in opposite direction by trying to be for and against the gang received quite a shock one day last week when he appealed to Supt. Harris for support in a project he had under consideration and was told plainly that no consolation by way of help would be given him because of the activity displayed by him in behalf of the union mine workers when he thought their star was in the ascendency, but whom now he had forsaken when defeat was written upon their banner.

Another illustration of how even a good man can be blinded and deceived was shown recently, when Rev. Samuel Falloway, Presiding Elder of the Reformed Episcopal Church, made a tour of the anthracite coal regions to ascertain the true conditions of affairs as they exist there. We take it for granted that there is no middle ground to occupy in the controversy now going on in the strike region, and that the Bishop has about as much human nature about him as the rest of us, who always take sides even in a dog fight and that he went there strongly prejudiced in favor of the strikers, which fact is made plain when he stated that "Mitchell he could not speak too highly of." He quotes no operator, yet he went there to get both sides. This reminds us of a similar occurrence taking place here last year when the Governor General Murray here and, of course, as was the case with Bishop Falloway, the U. M. W.

heard he was coming and therefore the best of order prevailed and the strikers' tale was believed. But you will see from a perusal of the clipping here reproduced that the Bishop, although highly praising Mitchell, says nothing against him for the leading part he takes in making coal thieves of an "honest old Scotchman" and two Poles, who, according to his own statement, were caught stealing coal, "which the reverend gentleman calls "picking coal" and which poverty was brought on by the gang calling a strike. The Bishop says: "The relief fund is being disbursed with admirable discretion." Yet it is evident that none or very little cash ever reached the pockets of the poor miners, hence they are compelled to resort to "picking coal from an abandoned mine" and to do without their liquor:

"At no time while we were in the coal regions did we see a drunken man. I was amazed at the peace and order everywhere, after the reports of riot and mob violence I had read in the newspapers. Day before yesterday," said Bishop Falloway, "in Shenandoah they had what they termed "an awful row." We took the trouble to investigate it, because we wanted to know both sides. We found that two Poles and an honest old Scotchman, named Sandy McLaren, had been caught picking coal in an abandoned mine belonging to the Girard estate. The Sheriff said he was unable to arrest these men, so a troop of cavalry and a troop of infantry were called out to take Sandy and his friends into custody." Bishop Falloway says further, concerning the relief fund, that it is being disbursed with admirable discretion. "I find that, thanks to this fund, there is surprisingly little suffering in the miners' homes. I had expected to see the most abject poverty, but I find that the majority of the families, while they live frugally, are in no danger of starvation so long as the relief contributions continue to come in."

The new coal company lately formed at Henderson to develop coal and south of that place have been forced, so rumor states, to abandon their effort, on account of too much water flowing into the shaft. Another location will be sought.

From many parts of the state there continue to come glowing reports of oil wells struck. Last week five new wells were sunk in Knox county, yet nothing cheering or flattering is heard from the many tests being made in that part of the state.

The Globe-Democrat, in commenting upon the anthracite strike, says: "The disorder in the strike region is ominous. When this comes to the end of the contest is usually near at hand."

The chances are that the strike is almost over. The operators have been boasting that from 60 to 80 percent of the strikers would return to work if the organization would let them, and many of the strikers themselves have been saying the same thing. It now looks as if a break was near."

Last Saturday was another busy day for the clerical department of the St. Bernard Mining Company. It being pay day and thousands of dollars being paid out, naturally the boys were kept hard at work seeing that everybody received their just dues.

Bishop Falloway says the reports of riots and disorder in the anthracite regions are exaggerated.

FACTS & FICTION

The Fairview Review in last week's issue contains an article from the pen of "Maxie." It is unusually interesting on account of the hero, a one-legged man, doing stunts and performing feats of agility as he chases a negro boy around the room. In the beginning of her effusion, which was evidently copied verbatim from a dime novel of the blood and thunder variety, Maxie says her hero was profusely put together; her meaning here is a little obscure, as the man could not have had a profusion of legs, arms, &c. A little further on she refers to the shriek of a bull-frog. This could not have been a Kentucky frog, if so it was strangely at variance with its kindred around Earlinton. It must have been a new variety with a steam calliope attachment. We are a little inclined to think Maxie kinder overlooked her hand on this article and we would advise her never to attempt to write unless provided with Webster's Dictionary and a pictorial history of frogs and their habits.

"At no time while we were in the coal regions did we see a drunken man. I was amazed at the peace and order everywhere, after the reports of riot and mob violence I had read in the newspapers. Day before yesterday," said Bishop Falloway, "in Shenandoah they had what they termed "an awful row." We took the trouble to investigate it, because we wanted to know both sides. We found that two Poles and an honest old Scotchman, named Sandy McLaren, had been caught picking coal in an abandoned mine belonging to the Girard estate. The Sheriff said he was unable to arrest these men, so a troop of cavalry and a troop of infantry were called out to take Sandy and his friends into custody." Bishop Falloway says further, concerning the relief fund, that it is being disbursed with admirable discretion. "I find that, thanks to this fund, there is surprisingly little suffering in the miners' homes. I had expected to see the most abject poverty, but I find that the majority of the families, while they live frugally, are in no danger of starvation so long as the relief contributions continue to come in."

J. C. H. in the Review last week got off some verses in which he alludes to us as "Old Blue G."

We take exceptions to this. We are not old; it does not follow because one's pale dome of thought glistens like moonlight on the snow, that he is old. In the second verse he makes News and fool rhyme. In the third printer and sinner, and in the fifth verse he says "Same old snakes crawling out of the shoes." We would like to know if this is personal or to what shoes he has reference. Poets are allowed a great deal of latitude, J. C. H., but you want too much. Why could you not have said:

Same old office,
Same old pay,
Handed out
On Saturday.
Same old office,
Same old fools,
Monkeying around
Same old miles.
Same old office,
Same old type,
Same old printer
On the swipe.

The rhythm of your verse may be alright J. C. H., but your feet are not mates.

Miss Alma Powell, an actress formerly the wife of Ward Headley and now leading lady with the Robinson company, playing in East Lynne at Cincinnati, had a scrap with Miss Helen Nixon last Monday on account of the latter's wearing a better and more showy dress than she did, says the Cincinnati Post. Miss Powell is well known at Princeton and Madisonville.

Over at Hopkinsville recently the town, which stirred up a Methodist revival and among the brands garnered from the burning was a notoriously hard bat who, for convenience, may be designated Bill. Religion took hold of him like a case of cholera morbus and his growth in grace was so rapid that after a few sessions at the mourner's bench he passed around the contribution box. While thus engaged, as he approached the rear of the church, he came upon a bunch of his old companions in cordiality who had gathered expressly to see him perform. Bill was equal to the emergency, and as none of the sinners in question showed any inclination to contribute, he leaned over and said in a sepulchral whisper, audible in all the church: "Shell out, boys, salvation is free, but it costs like hell to run a Methodist church."

Switchman Iley Lane has about recovered from his recent serious illness and has gone to Laramie, to spend a month.

Conductor Jas. Sparrow is off account of sickness.

The Louisville Times says: "You might travel from Cincinnati to New Orleans over the L. & N. and not find a more efficient or popular official than Capt. W. T. McAtee, the conductor on the star run between Louisville and Nashville. For twenty-three years he has been pinching tickets. He is one of the best posted as well as the most courteous men on the road. He goes out every other night on No. 1, which is a flyer."

A special from New Decatur says: "Work on the new buildings for the enlargement of the Louisville & Nashville railroad shops here is being pushed. Over fifty men are at work. Besides the enlargement of the present buildings an entirely new building, 261x75 feet is to be erected. In this building car axles will be made. This will be an entirely new feature of the Louisville & Nashville, as they have never manufactured their car axles. These shops have but recently completed an order for 350 box cars and will soon start work on 500 gondolas. They have orders on hand at present for over 1,800 new cars."

Wat D. Rutherford, of Ravenna, went home last Thursday sick with malarial fever, and has been confined to his bed ever since, but at this writing he seems to be getting along very well and will probably be able to sit up in a few days.

DOWN IN THE MINES.

The following taken from the Manufacturers' Record indicates that Senator Deboe, of Marion, has made all the necessary arrangements to become a mine operator in Western Kentucky:

The Senate Mining Company, Frankfort, Ky., with $100,000 capital stock, has been incorporated. Senator W. J. Deboe is the chief stockholder. The other incorporators are J. H. Morse, Carl Henderson and C. E. Weldon, all of Marion, Ky. The company will mine fluor-spur, lead and zinc. Its holdings are in Crittenden county."

When the fact is taken into consideration that only about 18 percent of the striking miners in the East and 75 percent of the balance cannot speak the English language, you cannot wonder at the defiance manifested at the laws. Hungarians and Slavs that work their wives and daughters down in the mines cannot be expected to make a model citizen of this country, where they came, not for the love they bear the country, but as a sojourner after money only.

AMONG THE FINANCIERS.

Secretary of the Treasury Lending His Steady Hand to the Troubled Money Market.

DISCUSSES SITUATION WITH BANKERS.

The Secretary Says He is Assured the Fortnight Money Dollars in Cash Will Be Retained as the Result of His Action in Hesitating to Touch the Bank Reserves.

New York, Oct. 1.—Secretary Shaw was an early visitor at the treasury Tuesday. Secretary Shaw came to the financial district for the purpose of discussing the situation with bankers. His early visitors included President Geo. F. Baker of the First national bank, Francis L. Hyne, vice-president of that bank, and Vice-President Vanderlip of the City national bank. The secretary remained downtown the greater part of the day. He expressed himself as being gratified at the improvement shown by the money outlook.

In an interview the secretary said that all savings bank securities accepted by the treasury department in place of government bonds would be of the highest class, panic proof and as good in London as in New York.

The secretary said he had been assured that fully $40,000,000 cash will be released as a result of his action. Among the secretary's other callers were W. A. Nash, president of the Corn Exchange bank, and chairman of the clearinghouse committee; Jon C. Henricks, president of the National Bank of Commerce; W. H. Perkins, president of the Bank of America, and James A. Blair. The representatives of two leading bond houses also conferred with the secretary, who left for Washington Tuesday night.

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY SHAW.

The Secretary of the Treasury Explains His Action.

New York, Oct. 1.—Secretary Shaw gave out the following statement Tuesday:

"The department is in receipt of a large number of requests from small country banks in the country, clearly showing that the statement given out Monday night was misunderstood, or rather that it was not carefully read. That there may be no misunderstanding following the following statement is made:

"No new deposits will be made on any security other than government bonds, so long as government bonds can be secured. For the present banks seem to be able to obtain, frequently by borrowing, bonds other than two per cent. consols. They can obtain the use of these bonds for a limited period, and they are as desirable as any for security for deposits. They are not as desirable as security for circulation, for the reason that the rate of interest is not as stable as one per cent., while circulation based on the two per cent. consols is taxable at only one-half of one per cent. The banks can not obtain except by purchase any bonds as a basis for circulation, because when deposited for circulation they can not be replaced by the circulation, and it can take a year or more before their circulation can be retired, and the price of bonds is so maintained at considerable loss to the banks. They must be encouraged, circumlocutionally, to deposit."

"Therefore, the department has decided to release, for such banks as have deposits and are not maintaining their limit of circulation, a portion of the bonds now held by the government, taking in view thereof the circumstances of the case, condition above that the bonds retained will be used for the immediate issue of additional circulation. This provision does not apply to those banks that already have their maximum circulation, either do they have any bonds to do so, and are not depositors. The sole purpose of the offer is to increase circulation that is already printed and ready to be issued, and by banks that already have the bonds on deposit. The bank deposits being scattered throughout the country, the relief offered, it is believed, will be national, rather than local, for it applies to all sections of the country, and to every state in the Union."

Secretary Shaw, during the afternoon, received a number of telegrams from a number of bankers from various sections of the country, commending his action.

Carrie Nation at New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 1.—Through one hour filled with side-splitting comedy, Carrie Nation stood on the granite steps of Osborn Hall, Tuesday, and talked of prohibition and the evils of smoking. She had a pipe-smoking assemblage of Yale students. She was forced to admit that it was a strenuous effort.

The Cuban Budget.

Havana, Oct. 1.—Garcia Montes, secretary of finance, has reported the Cuban budget to be $14,000,000.

In Java

Natives do not glaze coffee with a cheap and impure coating. They have too high a regard for health as well as for the naturally delicious flavor of their popular berry. The very American roasters who glaze their packages do not dare to touch or glaze their high-priced Mochas and Javas. Why?

Lion Coffee is never glazed or adulterated. It is JUST PUR'S Coffee.

The sealed package insures uniform quality and freshness.

CAIRO STREET CRIES.

Strange Sounds and queer Voices

That Travelers Hear in the Egyptian Metropolis.

Take a chair outside a busy cafe near the market place and tram center and watch street life. There are hungry men, no starving, pinched child faces, no finger-worn mothers, for this is a land of plenty and the people are healthy and strong.

Then sunshine and laughter spray a welcome fragrance over the novelty and romance of the gay city streets. says the London Traveler.

Here is a street magician twanging a stringed instrument with a bow, and accompanied by a twanging girl who tips defily on a species of tambourine, while bystanders ejaculate: "Allah! Allah!"—the Arabic word for applause. If not a genuine, music with wild, maudlin (never mind), it is not nearly so disagreeable as a street corner at home, and they will go away if you tell them.

The baboon, the donkey and boy are in evidence, and a scene of odd western life is enacted under a canopy of rare and ancient hangings. The body is covered with a sheet and electric lamps throw their vibrations on the wavy hair.

The servants of the Zola household, which only became generally known late Monday afternoon, has caused a great sensation in Paris, and in the evening there was a constant stream of callers at the Zola residence, and a good many of them, like the maid, were evidently of foreign and certainly funny, and you console yourself with the hope of a minimum of cruelty in the training, fruit seller, basket on head, with bread and grapes and figs, sang a song: "O roses, a rose, a rose," minor.

There is a drink seller, bent under the weight of the odd-shaped jar, strung over his shoulder, a lump of ice projecting from its mouth, conjuring custom in a similar strain, as the Zola residence, and a boy, both with the air round with the rhythmic clasp of two brazen scissars: "O refreshment of the weary! O quencher of parched lip! O blessing of heaven!"

Another street cry, which may be heard in the main street of Alabashka (a suburb), contains the following enticing announcement: "Tomorrow, O people, I am going to kill a camel. The doctor says it is safe to eat camel meat."

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

O quencher of parched lip! O blessing of heaven!"

THURSDAY, OCT. 2, 1902.

The Texas oil fields have gotten somewhat beyond the boom stage and upon a business basis, and the product is vastly below the prophecies for that region. Much money has been sunk in search of Texas oil that has yielded nothing. Coal remains King and will continue to drive the locomotives of commerce.

The newspaper fraternity of Kentucky generally will deplore the loss of Judge John H. Westover, of Williamson, who has sold all his property with the purpose of making his future home at Oregon City, Oregon, where he will re-enter the newspaper business. Mr. Westover is one of the ex-presidents of the Kentucky Press Association and has been for years prominent in politics in his section. Here's wishing John and his good wife and the twins all the good things the wide west affords. They deserve them.

It is hard to tell who will settle the anthracite strike in his own sweet way first; the editor of the Louisville Post with his contribution box or Lawyer Chapin, of Boston, who threatens to have a receiver appointed for every operator in the business and the miners turned over to the strikers at once. Since Senator Hanna and the Pennsylvania Senators failed many notices have tried their hands at suggestion but the anthracite properties continue under the management of their owners and their output steadily increases.

WHILE in Madisonville this week we heard a gentleman make the remark that "money could buy everything." It can buy many things, we admit, but not everything. It cannot buy an honest man, be he judge, juror or laborer; it cannot buy a place that will make an unworthy man honorable; it may purchase a pew in a wealthy church, but it cannot purchase a guiltless conscience; it cannot buy a balm that will soothe the broken heart; it cannot gain the heart's affection of any woman or child or buy a happy home. Money cannot buy the dearest things life holds nor can it bribe death or secure a mansion in heaven for the soul's eternal dwelling place. Be not deceived! Do not make the pursuit of money the chief aim in life, for it will lead to disappointment and sorrow here and untold misery hereafter.

Dixie in the 20th Century is the subject of Rev. J. L. Hill's famous lecture, which will be given at Temple Theatre Thursday night, Oct. 9th. Rev. Hill was formerly pastor of the Christian church at Madisonville and has quite a number of friends there who will be present the night of the lecture. The newspapers comment favorably on this lecture and it will no doubt be both instructive and interesting. Let the people of Earlinton turn out to this lecture and give Rev. Hill a full house.

Gov. Beckham has approved the selection of the Villa Ridge Inn property as a location for the Kentucky Confederate Home. His approval was announced in a letter to Col. Bennett H. Young, president of the Confederate Home Commission.

QUER PEOPLE OF ASIA.

The Lolas of Chinese Turkestan Have Customs Entirely Different from the Chinese.

Writing of the Lolas of Chinese Turkestan Rev. W. M. Upper says:

"The men wear loose blue and white short trousers, made of thin plaided felt cloth, a stout leather belt from the neck to the knees, and is useful by day. In cold, or wet weather, and at night forms an ample covering." As far as I remember, the Chinese never wear any kind of clothing on the upper part of the front, then bind it into a kind of roll, so that the forehead, so that it becomes the most conspicuous object about them.

Their women folk wear a short jacket, often finely embroidered, over a pointed skirt, unlike a Scotch kilt. Their feet and ankles are bare—a fine contrast to the cramped, deformed feet of the Chinese women. They have well-formed figures and even features.

The ease with which they go about their work attracts the attention and wins the admiration of the traveler.

On this special occasion I found the whole family sitting around a big log fire, watching the cooking of a meal which had been prepared for them by a government cook. When they considered the carcass, cooked the housewife took a big wooden spoon several feet long and shovelled the contents of the pot into small tubs, which were served to each man. This was a good supply of meat.

Wooden spoons were used in eating; chopsticks I did not see. The tubs were carefully washed and replenished as soon as a diminution occurred.

When the principal portion of the meal was finished the tubs were passed to the younger and inferior members of the household, and between them all they managed to put out or sight what had remained. There were not so many as I was offered the use of a grain chest—quite a dignified place compared with the rest.

The War Upon Disease.

Medicine is engaged upon an endless combat with endless foes. One disease comes from our midst, hydro-like, another spreads disorder from without. Today, in Germany, while sanitation and bacteriology were defeating the enemies which preyed upon lung and alimentary canal, the ranks of disease are to be recruited from foes whose strife falls chiefly upon the brain and upon the spinal cord.—London Lancet.

Matters of Geography.

How often does the earth have a revolution? asked the teacher.

"What part of the earth?" inquired the pupil.

"What part?"

"Yes, if you mean in the United States, every 24 hours; but if you mean in South America, we have an 'earthquake'."—Philadelphia Record.

Hunting Henderson.

The executive committee of the Elks' carnival will run a train boat out of Henderson Friday, stopping at all stations on the L. & N. to reach Earlinton some time during the morning and stop over 30 minutes. The train will leave Henderson at 7:30 a.m., and remain out all day. The object is not only to boom the carnival but to draw trade for the Henderson merchants. Full brass band will accompany the train.

ed, yet last Saturday the strikers held up a coal train and troops were called in to give protection while the same was being moved, and this was done almost under the very nose of Mitchell, who was in the state the same day holding a consultation.

Much sympathy is expressed by the miners for Mr. and Mrs. Cloren in their sad bereavement of the loss of a son by typhoid fever.

A remarkable story comes from Lexington, Ky., that there is a belief around Prospect Hill that the secrecy surrounding the mine development for zinc and spar there indicates that the mine really contains gold.

A fuel called briquettes, composed of brown coal, peat and waste from the coal mines, was manufactured in Germany last year to the extent of 1,500,230 tons and sold at $3.17 a ton. These briquettes are the principal domestic fuel in Berlin and other German cities. They are clean and convenient to handle, light quickly and burn with a clear, intense flame without smoke. Their use makes Berlin, though a large manufacturing city, one of the cleanest in Europe.

Sincere Fair.

The Madisonville, Ky., Lodge of Elks following the precedent set by other Elk Lodges throughout the country has arranged to give a Street Fair and Carnival. The event which will be made a holiday in all the name implies will be held in Madisonville, during the week commencing October 10th. Performances will be given afternoon and evening and the famous Robinson Carnival Co. of Cincinnati, which has conducted some of the most successful street fairs in the country has been secured to furnish the attractions for the Madisonville Carnival. Mr. George A. Gohen, a well known Cincinnati newspaper man, is now in Madisonville arranging the details for the coming event. There will be ten or twelve grand classes of entertainment, not including the two or three absolutely free attractions which have been secured at great expense. These latter will consist of Prof. Record, who rides a bicycle down an inclined stairway 200 feet long into a cycle whirl, Mile, Orococo, who ascends and descends a spiral tower while incased in a globe only 28 inches in diameter, and Prof. Lewis champion high diver of the world, who takes his audience from the land to the high seas in a tank of water less than 4 feet deep.

Other attractions that will be presented will be Adolph Seaman's $20,000 Crystal Maze, under the Red Dome, Luneta, the flying lady, the American glass blowers, Princess Lulu, the smallest woman in the world, the Electric Palace showing moving pictures of Presidents McKinley's funeral, the eruption of Mt. Pelee and the battle of San Juan Hill, the great fire in San Fran, Prof. Bosco, who actually eats snakes alive, Hannah, the wild girl, the statue turning to life, the largest alligator in captivity, the Bijou Theatre and Temple of Music, the aby incubator with live babies inside, beautiful Latta in poses plastique, George, the turtle boy, the English Carousel and the American Ferris wheel. The L. & N. railroad will run excursions to Madisonville during Carnival week and every bus house and many residences in Madisonville will be profusely decorated.

A good time is assured everybody who attends.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure, destruction, that is by surgical removal. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed it makes a rumbling sound or imperceptible hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless this tube is again opened and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. There are no remedies for deafness except those which are nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

IN THE INTEREST

OF THE

...Woman's Christian Temperance Union..

Edited by a White Ribboner.

It is most comforting to know that an aroused public sentiment was strong enough in the state of Kentucky to prevent that relic of barbarism, a prize fight, from taking place within its borders.

It is also interesting to know that there are ministers of the Gospel in the state who are courageous enough to enter a protest against such a desecration of the sacredness of the Sabbath as base ball games.

Very early in the history of the organization, the W.C.T.U. learned that a want of reverence for Sunday as a sacred day, is one of the strongest allies of the liquor traffic, and Sunday Observance was made a department of the organization.

Who are the people who attend prize fights and Sunday baseball games? The crowds at each place will be found made up of identically the same people and at least 90 percent of these, the patrons of the saloon.

We wish it could be said that no professing Christian would be found at either place. Indeed, we wish it could be said that none are ever found in a saloon, but what are the facts? A treasury on the Christian religion over which angels must weep.

We can understand how the followers of the teachings of Robert Ingersoll can encourage Sunday ball games, but for those who profess to believe that the Bible is the inspired word of God, we can find no apology but that of a seared conscience. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," has become to them a meaningless expression. The Savior while on earth recognized this weakness, not to use a stronger term, when he said: "Ye cannot serve two masters."

It is this inconsistency on the part of those who profess His name that does the Christian church more harm than all the Ingersolls that ever lived. It is not the drunken inebriate in the gutter that perpetuates the saloon. It is the respectable moderate drinker, among whom, to their shame be it said, are to be found members of the church, and it is the patronage of this same class of people that renders prize fights and Sunday ball games possible.

It is most certainly to be hoped that the influence of the Y.M.C.A. and the combined influence of the church may prove strong enough to abolish the Sunday base ball, as well as its kindred spirit, the prize fight.

The Texas Story.

On Sunday, June 29, a number of the leading papers of Texas published an article of some length, under the caption of "Prohibition in America," and claiming to be "A history of the movement from colonial days to the present time."

In the Dallas News it occupied more than 40 column inches and was given a prominent three column display head. It appeared to be the result of an investigation of the subject by a regular contributor. As the article in question made it appear that Prohibition had proven a failure wherever it had been tried, it created quite a stir among the temperance people.

Nevertheless, on close inspection, the ear-marks of fraud were plainly visible. For the purpose of learning the exact facts in the case, the New York sent a representative to Texas, who, after a careful investigation, obtained facts proving absolutely that the pretended "history" was a bogus affair, prepared and printed for the special purpose of deceiving the public; that it was paid for by the whiskey pool having an office in New York City, and that the "go-between" in the matter was J. W. Riggins, mayor of Waco, Tex., who posed as chairman of a pretended anti-Prohibition state executive committee.

To obtain still further information, on July 18 a decoy letter was also sent to a large number of Texas papers. This was in the form of a circular from an "advertising contractor," offering matter similar to the article in the Dallas News, to be printed "without advertising marks of any kind." This letter was signed by Clarence T. Johnson and purposed to be from Washington, D. C. It stated that "The matter offered consists of arguments and statistics showing the failure of Prohibition in Texas and other states."

This circular letter was sent to about 500 papers of the state. It was not sent to any religious or educational papers, as they would not dare to print such matter. Neither was it sent to liquor papers, as they do not rank as reputable journals.

It is certainly cheering to note that many papers ignored the proposition entirely as being unworthy of consideratior, and that others printed the letter and chastised the writer in strong English; but of the 500 papers receiving the proposition, 168 responded favorably, though differing on the terms named.

In its issue of September 11, the New Voice publishes a complete list of the 168 papers, with the names of the publisher or proprietor and editor, together with the terms on which each was willing to accept the matter. In its issues of September 4 and 11, the New Voice publishes many of the 168 replies to the Clarence T. Johnson letter.

Notwithstanding the fact of her 168 black sheep, Texas has a historical record which ought to put some of her sister states to shame. As early as 1808 this was made a part of the constitution: "Sec. 48. The legislature may prohibit the sale of all intoxicating liquors in the immediate vicinity of any college or seminary of learning, provided said college or seminary be located other than at a county seat or the state capital."

In 1876 a new constitution was adopted in which Sec. 20 reads: "The legislature shall, at its first session, enact a law whereby the qualified voters of any county, justice precinct, town or city, by a majority vote from time to time, may determine whether the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited within the prescribed limits."

This law was passed and has been amended from time to time, until the state now has probably the most stringent local option law in the country. That under this law for the past two years the counties have been rapidly giving Prohibition majorities, is what has aroused the activity of the liquor men.

Major Riggins of Waco, will possibly learn that honesty is the best policy before he grows much older. On the evening of September 10, a resolution was introduced into the city council signed by seven of its ten members, calling for the impeachment of the mayor. The resolution contains nine counts against him, including incompetency, failure to carry out the instructions of the city council, and especially charging him with neglect of duty to enter the service of the liquor men in connection with the anti-Prohibition campaign. He was given until the evening of Sept. 11 to prepare his answer, when it was expected he would have his trial. Truly, the way of the transgressor is hard.

ANIMALS' NERVOUS CRISIS.

Many of Them Are Affected in Much the Same Manner as Human Beings.

A veterinary surgeon, Mr. Lepiney, has called the attention of the Society of Hypnotism and Psychology to the importance of the mental pathology of animals. Nervous trouble in mammals may be produced no among us by different causes, reports La Nature.

A dog, whose history Mr. Lepiney gives, was put out to board at the commencement of the holidays each year, and every time he was sent home great care was necessary that the dog and its mistress did not come immediately in contact, for if they did a nervous crisis occurred which lasted for several months. This was a case of fear, and related by Dr. Hyger, the subject being one of his canary birds. The bird was singing happily in its cage, when a cat suddenly entered the room, threw itself upon the cage and knew not how to get out. The reaction on the cat to flight before the bird was wounded or even touched, but the shock had been such that the canary lay without movement in the bottom of the cage, and after a week of this with cold water still life restored. It then became active, and in a moment or two commenced to hop and jump as before. It had, however, become partially paralyzed, the complete aphonia having developed. This condition persisted for several weeks, and then as suddenly as he had lost it the bird regained his voice and again exercised his full musical powers.

A traumatic shock can also produce hysteria. Very often a dog which is the victim of an accident becomes lame without there being any symptom to explain the manifestations, and after killing a bird, Dr. Hyger has disclosed no lesion sufficiently serious to produce the malady. Dr. Hyger presents another case having the same origin. A cat, nine months of age, was bitten by a dog. The animal, which was not at all paralyzed, and from this was moved only by dragging its hind quarters, the posterior third of the trunk and the hind legs being completely paralyzed, as well as the tail. Some time after this a maid-servant, wishing to see if paralyzed cats, similarly do well, cats, always fell on their feet, threw the poor beast from the first story window. The cat fell on its feet and scampered away on four paws. The blow of the new emotion had completely cured its paralysis.

Lightning striking a stable has often produced insignificant burns and was followed by "seizures" of fits, hysterics, most frequently a paralysis or a contraction. These accidents have been especially studied by M. Hue, and in his account one observes a remarkable nervous tremor. At the veterinary school of Milan, in particular in several cases, the subjects being dogs, which manifested very accentuated nervous troubles under the impression of fright, rebuke or jealousy.

Difficult Part.

"What is the most difficult feature of your art?" asked the inquisitive person.

"Finding a victim who is willing to give up real money for a picture," replied the undiscovred artist.—Chicago Daily News.

Craftiness of the Fox.—A fox has been seen to carry away, and to eat the tongue of fawns or food. He has been seen to chase sheep until they, on becoming tired, hang out their tongues, which he then tears off and eats.—Nature.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topical for the Week Beginning Oct. 5—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle, D. D.—Searching question—John xii, 12.

Topic—A searching question—John xii, 12.

There are a number of very interesting scenes in this twenty-first chapter of the gospel of John. The most important of these is in the conversation of Christ with Simon Peter concerning His love for him, His evident forgiveness of his denial and His recommendation of Peter to be the head of the church. The closing scene is very touching indeed. Christ prophesies the death of Peter as a martyr. The apostle then asks Him concerning John, to which Jesus replies: "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me." Christ did not need to say that it was His will that Peter should follow. In His second coming: He simply meant in this way to emphasize to Simon Peter the importance of the great commission. He would be his link in relation to the Master and not the future destiny of some one else. This is undoubtedly the great lesson of the searching question of the topic, which is, "What is the most important command?"

It is the command to follow Christ. Individual and personal responsibility. It is the command to follow Christ. Individual and personal responsibility. As Jesus Christ is constantly emphasized in the word of God, it is plainly set forth that God but as individuals. This makes our relation to God a very important question. Dr. Charles Webster has asked, "What is the most important question that ever occupied your mind?" He replied, "My individual responsibility to God." If Christ had said anything else on this subject, I had much rather have had him say, "Your personal responsibility to God." This is the matter of supreme importance to all His disciples.

Individual and personal responsibility. It is the command to follow Christ. Individual and personal responsibility. As Jesus Christ is constantly emphasized in the word of God, it is plainly set forth that God but as individuals. This makes our relation to God a very important question. Dr. Charles Webster has asked, "What is the most important question that ever occupied your mind?" He replied, "My individual responsibility to God." If Christ had said anything else on this subject, I had much rather have had him say, "Your personal responsibility to God." This is the matter of supreme importance, it is certainly worth while for us to consider our personal and individual responsibility to God. Christ absolute responsibility of the relation of responsibility of other to Him. Too many people make the mistake of losing sight of their own responsibility to God, unnecessarily considering the responsibility of others to God.

Lebanus, the Greek philosopher might have been converted to Christianity had it not been for the inconsistency of professing Christians. Yet it is easier for a Christian to believe in the responsibility of others than in his own. One question that he should have considered was his personal and individual relation to Christ. What was that to him? He should have followed Christ.

The salvation of the soul is a personal matter between Christ and the individual. It is absolutely impossible for one person to be saved through or by another. We must give of our own to God, and not give of their oil to the foolish ones who had neglected to obtain it. The responsibility was upon them, and no one else could make up for them what they had neglected. Each one must be saved or lost upon his own responsibility.

Christian work is an individual matter. Christ taught that there was to "every man his work." No one can do the work of another any more than one can eat another's饭. There is the place of salvation for another. There is a work for each one of us to do, and we will be held personally responsible for the accomplishment of it or the failure to do it.

In the judgment of the future is also an individual matter. It is divinely taught that each one must render an account of himself unto God. We will not be called upon to account for others, but we will be held responsible for us to carry the responsibility which rests upon ourselves.

These things being true, the full importance of Christ's question and His command is that we should impel ourselves upon our minds. Instead of being unduly interested in the relation of others to Christ and in their future destiny we should above all things else consider how to meet the requirements of our own obligations that devolve upon us personally, and this can be done only by personally accepting Christ and by faithfully following Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Mat. iv, 18-20; xvi, 14-23; Mark ii, 14; Act. vi, 1-31; Rom. ii, 1-8; xiv, 12-15; Gal. i, 1-3; I Pet. 1, 16; Rev. xi, 20; xii, 12.

Experiencing Disaster.

Many Christians are continually living in a state of continual dread. They expect disaster. Every occurrence of their lives is scanned with a fearful eye. Their thoughts seem to be: "What's the matter in store for me now?" Some they fear the present the present. "All that can happen will happen." If they see in their sky a cloud the size of a man's hand, they never dream of looking for the silver lining, but straightway hide themselves. While these are hidden the silver lining appears, but they are too afraid to look at it, the heavens remain dark for them. Their opportunity is gone. They reap only sorrow, while their neighbors more hopeful, are rejoicing in trust in God and experience of His love. It does not pay to expect disaster.—Episcopal Recorder.

Fattening.

Patiency is a virtue for which there is no substitute. There is often no other way to meet the trials of life than by patient endurance. But this really is a most gracious way when the sufferer finds it. Nor is it a way which any one need be ashamed to take, for our Lord recommends it. "In your patience ye shall find rest." In this case as in all others, the best way to meet the trials of life is to trust in God.

It is often the case that when we are often left to ourselves, we are apt to feel dismally alone and forsaken.

10. Within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan to go in to possess the land which the Lord your God giveth you to possess it.

Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, for he believed God. Then said he unto them, "Every man giveth his servant gifts from God, but they had to enter into and appropriate it. Jordan was before them to be crossed, and the walled cities and the giant were still there, but there are no difficulties to God or to those who, like Joshua, trust in Caleb. The good God has given us this case as believers in Jesus Christ, redeemed by His blood, it is our privilege to appropriate His promises and by faith in His love live lives of victory over self and sin to His glory. May the encouraging words of our lesson come home to each of us in the power of the Spirit.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON I, FOURTH QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 6.

Text of the Lesson, Josh. i, 1-22. Memory Verses, S. H. Golden Text, John i, 1. Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

1. The Lord goes into Joshua, the son of Nun, Moses' minister.

This is to me the heart of these two verses and of the whole lesson and of the whole Bible—the Lord hath spoken.

Note. Note the Lord hath spoken.

In Isa. lxv, 2, we learn that the man whom the Lord regards with favor is the man with a poor and contrite spirit, who trembles at His word, who fears His voice, who abhors the devil, despises and criticizes and minimizes His word. Reiterating the assurance that He had given the land to Israel, He bids Joshua as their leader to go and cross over Jordan. God is their leader and master over them.

4. Even though that the seat of your foul shall tread upon that I have given unto you, as I would use it.

Again in Gen. xv, 18. The purposes of God are, like Himself, eternal. His commands stand, and He does all His pleasure. (Eph. iii, 11; Ps. xxiii, 11; Isa. xli, 10.) Dr. Charles Webster says, "My duty now is to do what I can for the Lord, and when He would do and when He would not let me do, and when He would do it for me, and when He would not let me do it for myself." This is a very similar words of encouragement (Isa. xxii, 6-8), but now God Himself speaks to His servant Joshua as He had previously spoken to him by Moses. Dr. Charles Webster says, "We shall stand in these following verses. Some say, 'Oh, if I could only hear God speak to me!' not believing that in His word He is truly speaking to them as if they heard His audible voice from heaven.

5. Only be thou strong and very courageous.

See this command repeated in each of these verses with the assurance that the Lord will be with us. We shall not fail thee nor forsake thee.

Joshua had seen as Moses' minister some of the Lord's dealings with him, and he would doubtless feel that this gracious assurance covered all he could possibly need or desire. Unto all Israel, the Lord said, "I will be with you, and where you go I will go, and in the land I will give you I will be with you." This is a very similar words of encouragement (Isa. xxii, 6-8), but now God Himself speaks to His servant Joshua as He had previously spoken to him by Moses.

6. In the Lord I will trust.

See this command repeated in each of these verses with the assurance that the Lord will be with us. We shall not fail thee nor forsake thee.

The first two psalms which form a preface to the whole book of Psalms, or, rather, to the five books of Psalms, begin with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the third psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the fourth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the fifth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the sixth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the seventh psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the eighth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the ninth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the tenth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the eleventh psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the twelfth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the thirteenth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the fourteenth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the fifteenth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works." And the sixteenth psalm begins with the words, "I will sing of the Lord, and of His strength, and of His wondrous works."
